DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to the amendment filed June 5, 2007 for the above identified patent application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 5, and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Araki et al. (USP 6,114,772).

Araki et al. illustrates in Figure 8 a pinion gear (30) having a rotation-restricting ring (31), a rotation-restricting member (5) adapted to engage depressions of the ring, a thrust bearing (32) for absorbing friction between the ring and a member (34) for restricting backwards movement wherein the ring is formed separately from the pinion gear.

3. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Araki et al. (USP 6,114,772) as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Soh (USP 6,142,028).

Araki et al. does not teach a bearing integrally formed with the rotation-restricting ring, but the prior art to Soh illustrates a bearing (17) formed integrally with the rotation-restricting ring. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the bearing of Araki et al. with a rolling bearing being integrally formed with the rotation-restricting ring, as taught by Soh, motivation being to reduce friction between relatively rotating components with a simple and inexpensive bearing arrangement.

Araki et al. does not teach a sealing means for the bearing, but the bearing of Soh teaches a bearing (17) having a plate member (18), wherein the plate member covers the rolling bearing members so as to seal the bearing from contaminants. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the bearing of Araki et al. with a rolling bearing having a plate member, as taught by Soh, motivation being to reduce the possibility of contaminants from entering the bearing arrangement.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed June 5, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Figure 8 of Araki et al. teaches each and every feature of claims 1, 5, and 6. Accordingly, the claims stand rejected as noted above.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 9 is allowed.
6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The radial bearing of Figures 9-10 are not taught by the prior art, wherein the prior art teaches a thrust bearing as shown in Figures 1-8.

Conclusion

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
